INTERNATIONAL NETWORKS

International Action Network on Small Arms (IANSA)

IANSA is an international network comprised of over 800 civil society organizations working against gun violence. With a presence in over 120 countries across the world,

IANSA aims to improve human security by stopping the proliferation and misuse of small arms and light weapons (SALW). Through lobbyist, research, and development efforts, IANSA works to secure stronger regulations on guns and better controls on arms exports. Its network is comprised of a wide range of members, from development agencies to religious and profession-based organizations, as well as human rights, humanitarian, democracy, women's, and victim support groups. www.iansa.org

REGIONAL NETWORKS

West African Action Network on Small Arms (WAANSA)

The objective of WAANSA, a subsidiary of IANSA, is to stop combat the proliferation and misuse of SALW in the West African region. Linking small arms to local violence, terrorism, human rights violations, and an overall lack of security, WAANSA members share information, strategies, and experiences in order to better coordinate the obstruction of SALW accessibility and availability. Although it is based in Accra, WAANSA's members include over 300 civil society organizations and networks from the 15 ECOWAS Moratorium countries as well as international partners such as

Oxfam and UNREC (the Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa). www.waansa.org

Réseau Africain Francophone sur les Armes Légères (RAFAL)

RAFAL (which, in English, stands for French-Speaking African Network on Small Arms, Conflict Prevention, and Peace-building) is a multi-national, non-governmental organization sponsored and coordinated by GRIP (Group for Research and Information on Peace and Security). With an established network of over 80 organizations in the francophone countries of West and Central Africa, RAFAL facilitates the exchange of information, research, training, publication, and distribution between its members. Its aim is to strengthen civil society and improve awareness about the proliferation of SALW and its effect on conflict.
